PATHOLOGY ACADEMIC CLINICAL PROGRAMME

Uncovering insights, enabling cures

PATHOLOGISTS ARE THE DOCTORS YOU DO NOT MEET

Nearly every patient has had dealings with pathology services at some point. Every blood, stool or tissue sample is analysed by a pathology department to find out what makes people sick and determine the best treatment option.

Our pathologists and allied health colleagues are also actively involved in research and education activities with the aim to improve patient care and outcomes.

HELP US UNRAVEL THE NATURE AND CAUSES OF DISEASES

Research in Pathology helps us discover what is making people sick to determine the best treatment. You can help us:

- Translate healthcare breakthroughs into treatment and cures
- Transform the way we diagnose and treat diseases
- Shape the next generation of leaders in healthcare

EDUCATING THE NEXT GENERATION AND PASSING ON EXPERTISE

We believe that education plays an important role in preparing our pathologists, residents, trainees, medical students and allied health professionals to be future ready. With more philanthropic contributions, we will be able to nurture leading pathologists and allied health professionals who will provide clinical expertise for future generations, establishing Singapore as an educational hub for pathology in the region and beyond.

“ Pathology underpins all of medicine and healthcare. Every individual who has seen a doctor would have accessed pathology laboratory services. Every blood sample, fluid and tissue specimen is analysed by a pathology laboratory.

The Pathology Academic Clinical Programme is committed to translating meaningful scientific discoveries into quality innovations for patient care and treatment.

We want to understand why diseases occur and how they affect patients. Through multi-disciplinary efforts, we hope to effect cure as well as learn the best treatment modalities for patients.
