I am happy to say that I passed my Qualifying Exam last January. Did ACP give me confidence during my exam? Yes. But also by answering the theoretical and practical questions with all that I have learned from the course.

The module/ course taught us about the trends of Physiotherapy here in Singapore, what was expected from us as a practicing Physiotherapist, as well as things we should already know – from therapeutic interventions, to evidence-based outcome measures and a quick but thorough PT assessment with an idea of the appropriate treatments.

PROGRAMME AIM AND SYNOPSIS

The Advanced Certificate in Physiotherapy (ACP) course aims to elevate the standard of physiotherapy knowledge and practical skills among foreign-trained physiotherapists to a level that prepares them for Qualifying Examination (QE), conducted by the Ministry of Health, Singapore.

The programme uses a variety of innovative methods to enhance learning. It involves a combination of online discussions, lectures and weeknight/evening workshops. The course is suited to adult independent learning but with a focus on understanding and meeting the requirements for success in QE.

The programme has four major components: musculoskeletal physiotherapy, cardiopulmonary physiotherapy, neurologic physiotherapy and paediatric physiotherapy & women’s health. The contents include essential knowledge and skills, as well as fostering clinical reasoning development.

This is a 4 month programme. The participants are expected to take on active roles in participating in online discussions and workshops. Assessments include written assignments, presentations, theory and practical examinations. All the classes will be conducted after working hours.

At the end of this course, participants will:
 demonstrate entry-level knowledge and skills for physiotherapy practice in musculoskeletal, neurologic, cardiopulmonary, paediatric and women’s health areas
 appreciate the role of physiotherapy in the acute-care hospital setting in Singapore
 develop confidence to undertake QE.
